

Welcome to the August edition of the Sussex Law Society Newsletter. We hope you are all managing to find some time to enjoy the Summer months. There is no President's report this month as Lucy is taking a well-earned break but the Committee met recently and, among other things, welcomed the news that there has been a great interest from younger members in reviving the JLD and that a new committee is being set up and events planned for the Autumn so watch this space!

LEASEHOLD REFORM (GROUND RENT) ACT 2022

A reminder that the government this year introduced the Leasehold Reform \(Ground Rent\) Act 2022 which saw ground rent charges on most new residential leases in England and Wales banned from 30 June 2022. The Act, which will also apply to new retirement homes from 1 April 2023, was viewed by government as a key milestone in its work to fix the leasehold system and to level up home ownership, but how far its proposals will work in practice remains to be seen. This article posted on the property section of the Law Society website, looks at what is likely to change, and when.

JIMMY BLAKE-DYKE RIP

We were very sad to hear the news that Jimmy Blake-Dyke, a Past President of the Society, died in late June. A much loved and respected solicitor, he was a member and great supporter of the Sussex Law Society until his death.

He began his career articled to Peter Wilson, the senior partner of Wilson & Wilson in Kettering from 1950 to 1955. He remained with the firm until 1957, when he became an assistant solicitor with Burt Brill & Edwards in Brighton, specializing in litigation and becoming a partner there in 1960. The firm later amalgamated with Cardens and became Burt Brill & Cardens. He retired in 1992.

Jimmy was the first chairman of the Sussex Society of Young Solicitors, and was elected to the national committee, later becoming chairman of that committee. He joined the committee of the Sussex Law Society and was President from 1977 to 1978. He told us not long ago that his first memory of the Sussex Law Society was attending the Centenary Dinner in 1960. He remembered that the dinner had a lot of courses, with a break for sorbet and Russian cigarettes in the middle and that the speakers were so overawed by the occasion that they were not in the least amusing!

PROBLEMS WITH THE COURTS?

We have received many depressing examples of some of the problems members are having in their dealings with the local courts including delays, mistakes, communications, listing problems etc and how this is becoming increasingly difficult to explain to clients. One member wrote “none of the time spent dealing with the Court’s ineptitude or making unnecessary applications will be recoverable. I’m sure other members have similar tales and this is not unusual at all but it does highlight how very frustrating the current system is for us.”

We now have a local MP involved and are sending them your experiences so please continue to send any examples to Jeanette Lacy Scott and at the same time please encourage your clients to write to their MPs whenever you can.

REGULATION OR DELEGATION?

We must be doing something right! The most recent consumer satisfaction poll suggests that mandatory clarity and transparency on “go- compare” legal services advertising sites are beginning to generate positive feedback both as to value for money and quality. However, the legal press, analysts, commentators and special interest groups also observe that all is not well within the relationship between the overarching Legal Services Board and front-line Regulators, nor in turn these with their own representative bodies. CILEX is in dispute with its regulatory arm and in talks with the SRA to replace it. The LSB is seen as sitting on the fence. Whilst agreeing to co-operate, both the Bar Council and the Law Society are unhappy with the criteria upon which in the standards of competence are being delegated to them by the LSB. Notwithstanding the LSB last month declining to implement a statutory review of unreserved legal services, the SRA has somewhat surprisingly now seen fit to obtain a better understanding of this market by commissioning its own independent in-depth research.

The SRA has made the popular, albeit temporary, decision to a further “stay of execution” on the SIF closure by agreeing to underwrite the fund’s liabilities until end 2023. Whilst LeO’s performance remains under the microscope and in an effort to ease the backlog, the LSB has granted its request to amend the Rules by reducing the time limit for complaints from 6 to 1 years. This brings it in line with other similar schemes.

A NEW DEAL FOR RENTING – THE GOVERNMENT RESPONSE

Read here the government response to their consultation ‘A New Deal for Renting’ on removing Section 21 of the Housing Act 1988 and improving Section 8 eviction grounds. This includes details of the planned reforms to the tenancy system following the removal of Section 21 and a summary of the responses received to the consultation.

CRIMINAL BAR ASSOCIATION ACTION – HOW CAN CRIMINAL DEFENCE SOLICITORS SUPPORT THE ACTION AND DO YOU WANT TO?

Criminal barristers' 'days of action' have been escalating since the first walkout on Monday 27 June. There will be a five-day walkout starting today, 1 August 2022, followed by five-day walk out's every other week thereafter until a satisfactory response from the government is proposed.

The Criminal Law Solicitors Association (CLSA) held an open meeting on 15 July 2022, inviting criminal defence solicitors' feedback and views on how the action is affecting our practices, how the courts are dealing with our cases in the absence of counsel and what we would like to see happen next. In particular, focus was on the Government's proposed response to the CLAR report which falls well short of what was recommended and what is required, to make publicly funded criminal defence work financially viable.

The CLSA committee wanted to know whether criminal defence solicitors wish to support the CBA's Action and, if so, welcomed ideas as to how this could be achieved. The obvious but bold answer is to refuse to sign the October Legal Aid contract and there were, understandably, trepidations about that. If you would support that course of action, or have any ideas as to how we can support the CBA's action and put pressure on the Government, please contact the CLSA at admin@cls.co.uk

TRUST REGISTRATION SERVICE (TRS) & AML COMPLIANCE

Solicitors should be aware that due to the implementation of the Fifth Money Laundering Directive, many express trusts without UK tax liabilities will:

- fall within the scope of registration on HMRC Trust Registration Service and
- therefore need to be registered by 1 September 2022

The Law Society have published two sets of useful anti-money laundering (AML) guidance to help members comply with the updated Trust Registration Service (TRS) regime. You can find them here.

NEED HELP NAVIGATING YOUR WAY THROUGH THE PII RENEWAL PROCESS? HOWDEN SHARE THEIR LATEST MARKET UPDATE.

In their latest Market Report Howden examine the outcome of the April 2022 solicitors' PII renewal and provide insight into what your firm can expect if your policy is yet to renew in 2022. They also update you on issues currently on the radar for PII underwriters so you can review whether there is any action you need to take before renewal. In addition, there is guidance on discussing claims with your underwriter and provide some "dos and don'ts" to consider when it comes to your firm's website with your PII underwriter in mind.

Cyber security is a significant issue within the legal profession at the moment. Separate cyber insurance has become increasingly important, but some insurers are no longer prepared to provide separate cyber insurance cover to law firms. Howden's report updates you on security measures the remaining insurers will expect you to have.

On a broader note, consolidation of SRA-regulated practices is discussed, which is often the subject of discussion in the legal press. It is interesting to review some of the statistics published by the SRA and the Law Society to get a proper understanding of the extent to which the profession is changing and the number of firms that have opened and closed in the last two years against the backdrop of Covid and the introduction of the freelance model.
